Mr. Davis,
It's been great having Chemistry this year. Five also enjoyed your humor. Thanks for everything this year.
Stan Redding
P.S. What's your reaction to this benzene ring?

Mr. Davis,

Science has never been so interesting as it was this year. Of course, this is the first science course I have had! I've realized though, that I could have learned much more if I would have been in a different class the 3rd or 4th. One thing is for sure- this has been the best and most fun course I have ever taken.

Thank you so much for the picnic and I'll take you up on your offer to come again if I will bring me. Mr. Davis, thanks for listening, teasing, and sympathizing with the problems of the [illegible]

Mr Davis,
It has been loads of fun servicing for you. Even though I have never had you teacher, you have helped me alot in chemistry.
Ill be back to see you!

I've enjoyed being in your class and trying to keep your bottles filled. Thanks for all your extra help.

Dan Decker

Mr. Davis!

From the first day when you asked me about your "rash" I knew you were going to be fun! I'm so glad you had the picnic and it was a great success, and I loved every minute of it, when Robert and I walked here, I said "teacher" - Seriously, where I go I shall think that very - every - you for making chemistry so fun - easy - and a fun - interesting class. Good luck and that one test so Happy Labor Day, Happy St. Patrick's Day, and Happy Labor Day, I will all (all 600 of us) be back to work about next Monday. Now about next year - Now things I'm sure you'll be very busy, but I don't mind if we drive around for a while (such as this summer - and I'll

Dear Davis -

Hi Fats! Are ya gona miss me? I really should write back but hardabout yaw -- but I guess I better lie. Your nice --
I like you that and yaw --- and it's coming from me too!) But on the other hand your ---- opps! --- I forgot --- I'm suppose to lie. Your sweet, kind, generous, thoughtful ---- and --- ah! --- well --- I guess that's all you really had to put up with a lot of me this year --- I will admit, that I was a pretty big pest asking you to take me home all the time ---- but since you have such a big, generous heart (?) -- I took advantage of it. I really can never thank you enough --- because look at all the shoe leather you saved me!!!

You sure are a lot of fun --- and there's only one thing I regret --- (now get this) --- that I didn't get you as a teacher.
(I thought I'd never admit that - huh!) (Remember - I'm still being - I'm just saying this stuff to make you feel good.)
You might be sorry for inviting me to come visit you this summer --- because I'll eat you out of house & home -- but you can't back out of your invitation now -- I'm coming.

Well I think I wrote enough -- thanks for all the good (?) times - and don't ever become a grouch teacher.

You'll always be to me - FATS!!!

THE 1961 TOTEM

Mr. Davis —
I doesn't really expected to enjoy chemistry, but your witty comments and "famous sayings" made the whole thing worthwhile! Congratulation on being both a good teacher and a friend to the kids — that combination isn't easy. Please excuse all the funnels & beakers which probably disappeared while I was on equipment — some of us just aren't the organized type! But I'll luck in the future!

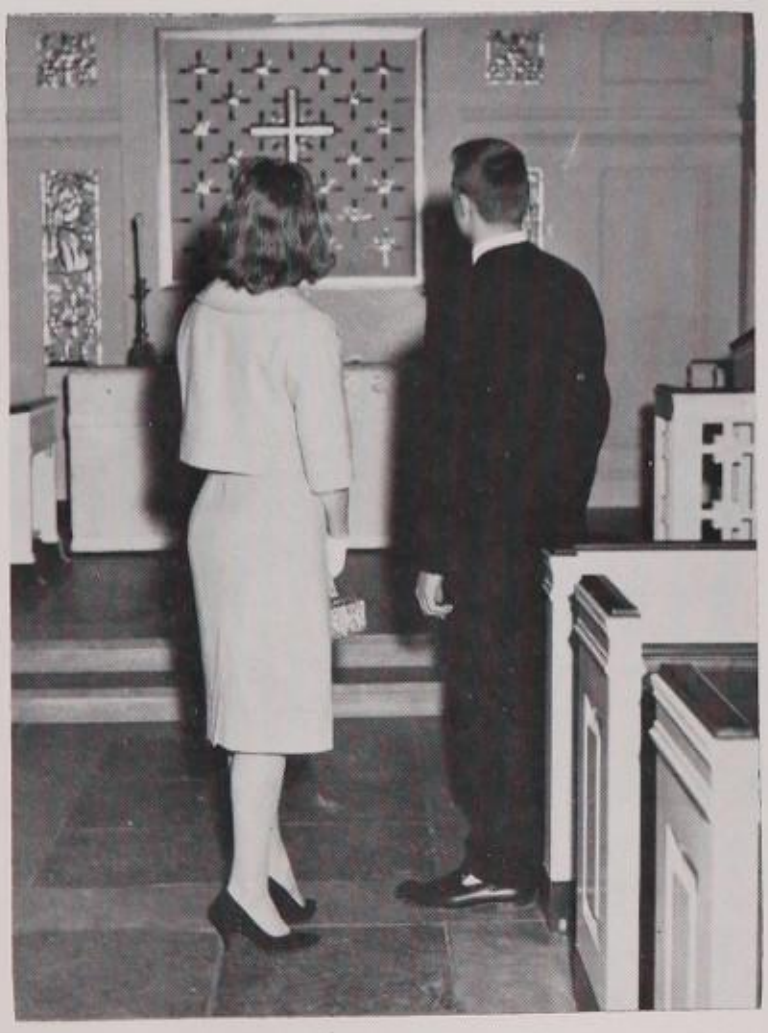
Worlds of Emphasis

The complex life of a South Side student revolves around three worlds of emphasis. Grouped together, these worlds form the foundation of his future. Taken individually, each of these worlds affects a different facet of the student's life, whether academic, religious, or social.



Prologue

The future — a vast, unknown expanse — containing our individual futures — college, a life's vocation, the path our whole life will take — these will for the majority of South Side students be decided within the next ten years. The foundation for our future is determined by our relationships with three worlds — the world of education, exemplified in the school; the world of religion, centered in our church affiliation and brought into our school life through religious assemblies and club activities; and finally, our social world which offers us unlimited opportunities to meet people and make friends and to develop our own talents and characters. These worlds are integral parts of our future. They will, for all of us, be developed and expanded to broader limits within the next ten years — for us . . .

THE DECADE OF DESTINY.

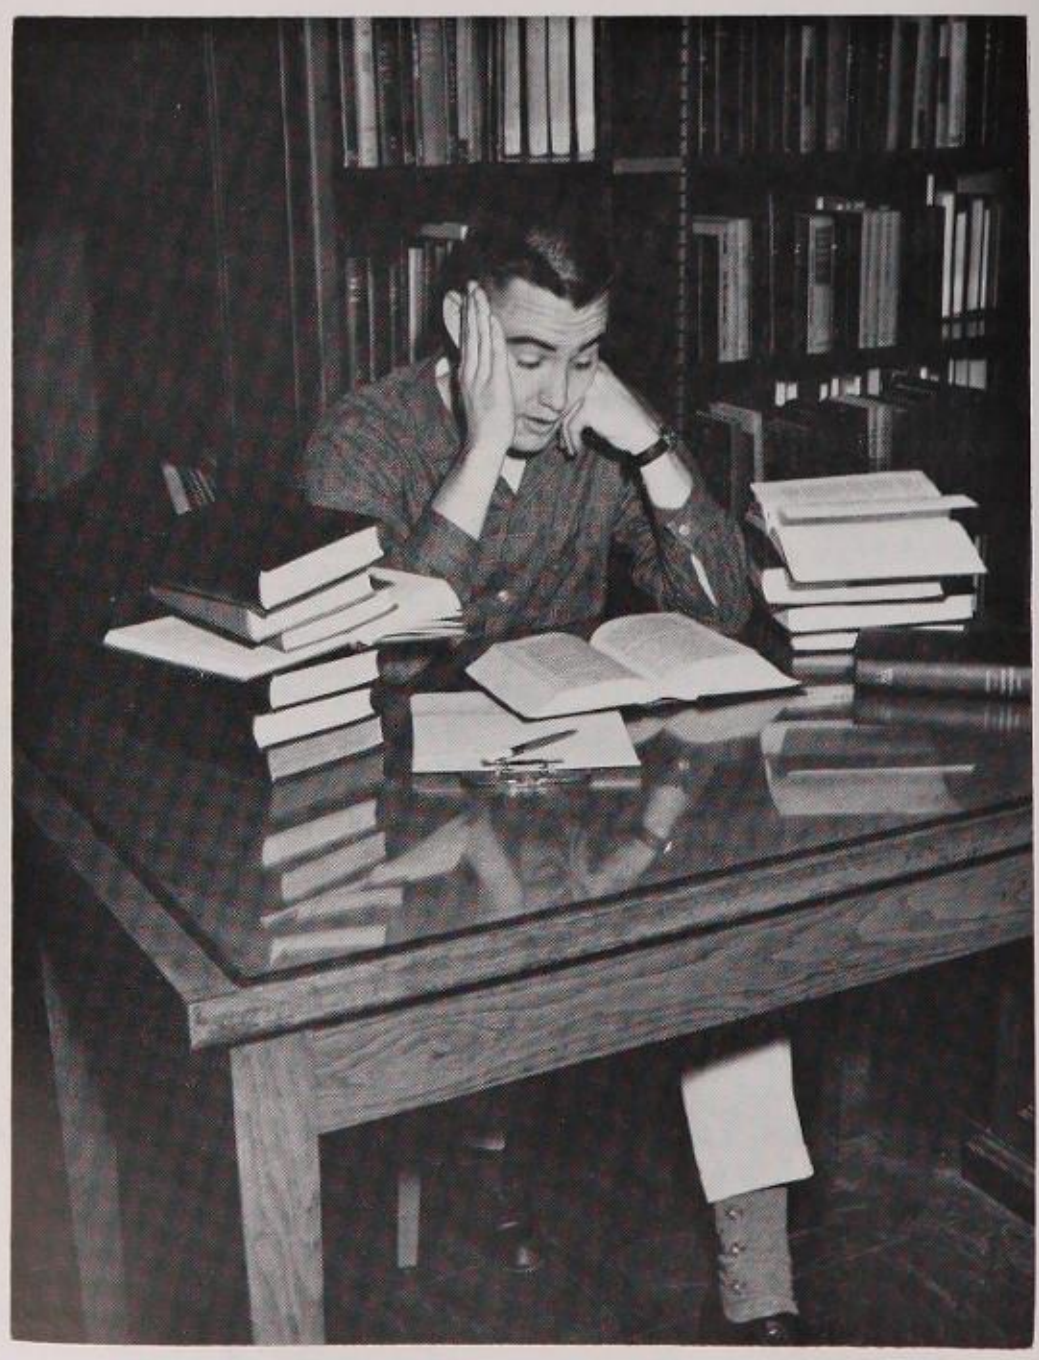
– Mr. Davis –

It has been said that the teen years are years of impression. you have, without exception, left your lasting mark upon he lives of many. You possess the too, too rare quality of a truly great, impressive, and highly respected teacher. You have en able to cross the barrier separating teacher - pupil relationships. y our influence has been far reaching. Henry Brooks Adams said, a teacher affects eternity; he can never tell where his influence

Thursd. , better known as Times day to Archer students, finds all subscribers including Sam Carter, Ken Davis, and Bob Bartel perusing the school paper.

Concent.. g all their efforts on the typewriters, loyal Times m.. . . Janet Dinius, Peggy Schmidt, Janet Brenn, and Jenny Manth furiously type to hand in last-minute copy.



The quest for learning . . . unexhaustible and always challenging. Tom Halley seeks solitude in the public library to study and to question the knowledge found by others.

Tonya Hines escapes the confusion and routine of every-day life and finds a time for contemplation in a world of her own.

An important friendship formed in high school is that between student and teacher. Mrs. Ruth Fleck and Joan Erck contemplate and discuss the merits of an impressionistic oil painting.

Academic World

Escaping from the reality depicted in the senior play, Tom Felger, Steve Black, and Steve Huffman approach another world through their plaintive melodies as the stage crew works.

"But Y ·ur Honor," pleads Jim Carter as District Attorney Flint on behalf of his client Miss Faulkner, portrayed by C · dy Miller. Jack Winder as Defense Attorney Stevens has just questioned the infallibility of the handwriting expert, played by Susan Bond, in the interests of his client Karen Andre, played by Judy English. Judge Heath, portrayed by Tom Felger, other members of the senior play cast, and the jury picked from the audience, hear testimony about the "Night of January 16."

Waving go·d-by to the well-wishers who have come to see them off, journalis.. Evie North, Sally Capps, Jim Carter, Bob Shine, and adviser, Mr. James Rohrabaugh eagerly anticipate the coming week at Columbia U· iversity in New York City.

Karen Klaehn, Patty North, and Nancy Redding find that art too takes a forward look as they view an oil painting at the Art Museum.

Underclassmen Bonnie Russell, Tom Bear, Judy Merrill, and Lissa Hoffman check the bulletin board to keep up-to-date on school events.

Music . . . an important part of many Archer lives and a part which takes many long hours of devoted practicing as illustrated by senior violinist Allen Steere.

Culture is brought to the st[illegible] body at the music assemblies and at the sp[illegible] and winter concerts. Here Marla Habecker [illegible]erforms a ballet to "Alice in Wonderland."

The Search . . .

The search goes on even if confined to a locker, and Larry Lee seems to be intent on finding some valuable lost article!

An important part of every senior English class is the hour-long book report. Dave Schwalm adds spice to his report on mountain and sea ballads with a few props.

Jack Harms begins his search in the chemistry lab.

Lissa Hoffman, searching for term paper material in the public library, ponders upon the selection of just the right book.

The first day of school—a time of confusion. These freshmen, armed with their yellow cards, provide no exception as they frantically search for their homerooms.

Marie Rohn tags Edee White with the coveted ribbon of National Honor Society, a reward for her continuous search for knowledge throughout four years.

. . . In School

The search on a local and national level . . . the Presidential election, brought to focus in the high school through work in social studies classes.

Senior Lesley Malone gains valuable experience by working as a checkout girl in a local supermarket.

Through his job as carry-out boy, Don Stalter supplements his educational background.

Sue Pfeifer prepares for the future by working part-time in a medical laboratory.

Mr. Davis -
If I did as much work in service as I do here, we might have got something done.
Phil Stettner

. . . After School

Phil Stettner learns the importance of getting along with others as he takes complaints for a local newspaper.

Illustrating still another facet in student life, these students pause to reflect on the meaning of the symbol of their religion before entering the church.

Religious tendencies within the school's clubs are exemplified in the Hi-Y induction ceremony which is conducted semi-annually in various community churches.

Religious World

Contributing to the mood of the religious assemblies is the choir under the direction of Mr. Lester Hostetler.

Before school, Archers congregate in the gym, one of the school's social hubs, to talk and try to study.

Pam Olson and Dennis McBroom find a new place to get away from it all as they converse while perched in the limbs of a tree.

Mrs. Frances Stuart and service worker Linda Seibel chat informally over their work in seventh period study hall.

The telephone . . . a popular instrument upon which friendships thrive. Jan Martindale . . . .

Social World

Bored, Sam? Tad McKay and Maria Marshall seem to be more interested in each other than in walking the dog. Maybe someone told them that hounds know how to find their own way.

The South Side Publications Philharmonic Orchestra gives those leaving for New York a musical send-off.

. . . and Chad MacDowell prove no exception as they extol the virtues of Mr. Bell's invention.

Ecstatically happy over their reign, Sally Capps and her attendants Pam Olson, Sheri DeYoung, Molly Dixon, and Sylvia Ehrman preside over Hi-Y's annual Queen of Hearts Dance.

Friends . . .

"Is he a halfback or quarterback," question Marie Paulson, Cid Pfeifer, Bruce Foltz, and Jane Finell as they gaze at Hi-Y's center of attraction at their football dance.

King Jim Dawson leads off "coronation dance" with Mary Meily at the Lettermen's after-game now Fantasy."

Diligently working on decorations for the Queen of Hearts Dance are Hi-Y members Gene Jacobs, Jack Harms, George Shull, Larry Allen, and Dennis McBroom.

Ruthie Russ and Julie Rhinehart, who are working behind the refreshment counter, serve Miss Pauline Van Gorder at the Meterite after-game dance.

Enraptured by the mood of their junior prom, "Athenian Allure," are John Bitem[illegible]haron Bass, Penny Yore, Chuck Weinraub, Flip Anderson, John Wilks, Judy Schumm, Stan Redding, and Sally Mallou[illegible]

Typifying today's misconception of Thanksgiving, Mary Collins, Bob Griffiths, Susie Bumgardner, and Mike Levy try to convey the true meaning of the November holiday to the student body during the Thanksgiving Assembly last fall.

"Whooping it up" in appreciation of the first feast of Thanksgiving, these Indians provide a contrast to today's celebration of the national holiday.

Creativity . . .

While trying to convince "Professor Van Blowhard" of their talent, John Margerum, Brian Bennington, Tom Thieme, and Dave Zimmerman entertain the student body at the annual Talent Show.

Christ's disciples, portrayed by students, discuss His life at the Easter Assembly and try to relate it to modern day situations.

The newest shaggy dog story? Not really. It's just Diane Irmscher and Pam Olson haunting the halls while waiting to present their dance in the Christmas Assembly.

"All I want for Christmas is . . . a jack-in-the-box!" exclaims Ricky Meeks to Jeanie Carroll in a department store scene presented at the Christmas Assembly.

Aren't they just too charming? . . . "Merla" Ogles, "Slyvia" Somers, "Sharin' " Pohl, "Silly" Dawson, and "Corral" Johnson mock the cheerleaders at a pep session during basketball season.

School Spirit . . .

"Sectionals or bust!" declares Mr. Thomas Compton, who is prepared to fight for a seat on the floor, regardless of prevailing weather conditions.

"Go, fight, win!" yells Marla Habecker as she springs high above the gym floor in her exuberance at a pep session.

Touchdown! Mr. Everett Havens demonstrates signals used by the referees during football games.

"Let's ree-ly yell!" say cheerleaders Sharon Carrel and Jeanie Carroll as they try to transmit their enthusiasm to the pep session crowd.

A selection from Bach? No, it's a band of South Side's distinguished faculty members performing their rendition of the school song to cheer the basketball team on to Sectional victory.

Hard at work during the Christmas season, Hi-Y members Steve Pratt, Stan Redding, John Biteman, and Karl Bandemer sell Christmas trees for the local YMCA.

Spring cleaning anyone? These Assemblies Workshop members, Phil Spray, Sue Horth, Lissa Hoffman, Sue Kelley, and Martha Lanning seem to be making the best of the situation as they clean the club's storeroom.

Service . . .

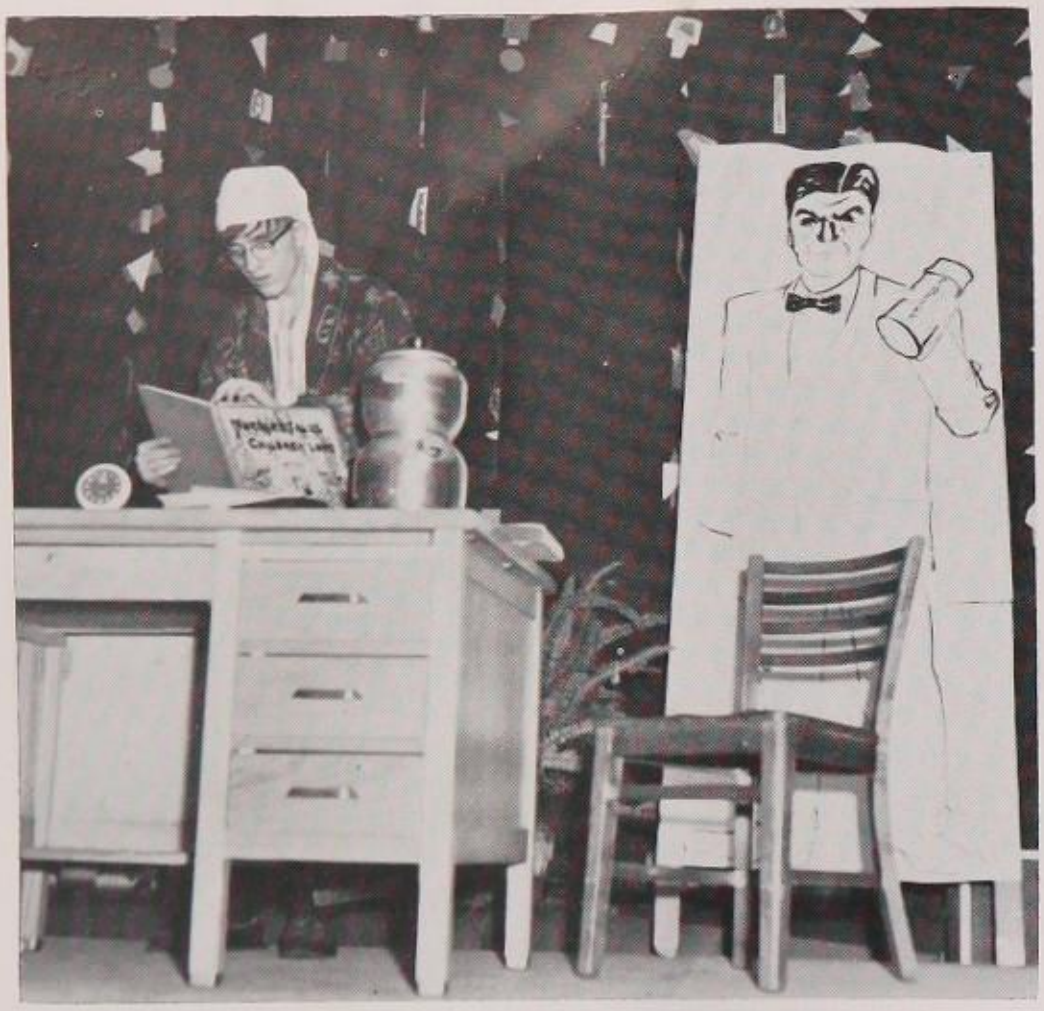
A sophomore dance class perfects its oriental routine to be presented at the annual spring show presented by the girls' athletic department.

Relating the responsibility for the growth of Fort Wayne to Service Club members, Mr. Earl Schwalm delivers the principal speech while Jim Carter and Dave Dill give him their attention at the annual banquet for Service Club members.

Providing a service to the school, Junior Red Cross members Porter Pace, Marcia Melching, Marsha Bechtold, Sherry Hall, and Alice Ashton, apply a little elbow grease to the publications trophies.

"Where's the ladder," cries Dave Schwalm, who, aided by John Wilks, Larry Allen, Sylvia Ehrman, and Sharon Carrel, is trying to decorate the goal-posts before a football game.

A friend? wonders Susie Scott as she receives a parking ticket from one of the policemen who controls school traffic.



Armed with "Gersmehl's Go-Juice," John Wilks struggles with his English reports in a monologue at the Senior Banquet.

Unity . . .

"On top of Old Smokey" . . . Juniors Susie Phillips, Sandy Miller, Peggy Floyd, and Judy Chapman harmonize during the entertainment at their banquet, "South's World Summit."

"Where's the paste?" queries Pam Olson as she and fellow decorators Nancy Vanderford, Pam Stech, Sharon Longenberger, and Diana Meyer work on the tablecloths for the Senior Banquet, "Perspective."

More punch? Susie Stauffer serves as hostess at the Senior Reception while Archer seniors and their parents chat in line.

Fascinated students and teachers watch Mr. George Scott, a former member of the faculty, sketch scenes of Paris at last spring's sophomore party, "Parisian Promenade" their first class function.

Looking for something? They seem to be, but actually Susie Stauffer, Linda Amos, and Molly Dixon are giving their rendition of "The Man On The Flying Trapeze" at the Senior Banquet.

Although rain temporarily dampened their spirits, the class of 1960 had the traditional Ivy Day ceremony in the gym with Barb Wallace as reigning queen being crowned by Senior Class President Dick Rothberg. Barb's attendants were Merle Baldwin, Janet Lawry, Margo Dixon, and Susie Van Fossen.

Susie Stauffer presides over the 1960 Recognition Day ceremonies as Spirit of South Side.

Dr. Dean F. Berkley from Indiana University addresses the 1960 graduating class on the "Challenge of Change" at Commencement exercises.

Seniors

For the 1961 graduates, the wearing of the cap and gown does not signify the culmination of a career but rather the beginning of a limitless future of opportunity. Knowing that one's high school education is only the beginning of what will constitute a richer and fuller life, members of the senior class must explore every avenue of research and learning in an effort to prepare themselves in order to make the greatest contribution to society. For only then can the true success of each individual be measured.

Chosen to lead the class of 1961 in organizing the many activities during this all-important year are seated, left to right, Evilou North and Sheri DeYoung, members of the social council. Standing, left to right, are Bob Shine, social council chairman; Annette Plesniak, member of the social council; Ron Hege, vice-president; and Chris Parrott, president.

The Class of 1961 Seeks the Challenge

As freshmen we began to take an interest in new subjects while we struggled to grasp the elusive fundamentals of knowledge.

For the next three years we strived to maintain the standards set by previous classes as well as to set our own. As sophomores we assumed responsibility by electing Chris Parrott, president; Evie North, vice-president; Sheri DeYoung, secretary; Tom Duff, social council chairman; and Molly Dixon and Dennis McBroom, members of the social council. Our sponsors, Mrs. Mildred Luse, Mr. Alfred Hemmer, and Mr. Leon Smith, helped us to produce, "Tin Pan Alley."

In 1959 we become juniors—upperclassmen at last. The class officers were again captained by Chris Parrott with Bob Shine as vice-president, Evie North as secretary, Sheri DeYoung as social council chairman, and Sally Dill and Tom Duff as council members. In planning our banquet, "This Wonderful Year 1959," and the prom, "Athenian Allure," we were assisted by the class sponsors, Mr. Alfred Hemmer and Mrs. Mildred Luse.

With Chris leading us for the final year aided by Ron Hege, vice-president; Sheri DeYoung, secretary; Bob Shine, social council chairman; and Annette Plesniak and Evie North, social council members, we moved into our final days at South Side.

After the Senior Reception, we faced our banquet with thoughts of both the past and the future. The senior play followed, and we heard the final notes of prom music fade into "Pomp and Circumstance." Ivy Day and Recognition Day were succeeded by baccalaureate services and Commencement, concluding our four ye[illegible]at South Side.

Aiding the officers in planning the senior class events are the sponsors, Miss Mary Crowe, Mr. Earl Sterner, and Mr. Robert Petty.

National Honor Society

Scholarship . . . Leadership . . . Character . . . Service. These four virtues are the qualities necessary for a student to be selected a member of National Honor Society.

On February 28, seventy-three seniors included in fifteen per cent of the upper third of their class were "tagged" with the traditional green and white ribbons signifying their election to National Honor Society.

Each distinguished senior was escorted by a faculty member to the National Honor Society banquet on April 28 where pins were presented.

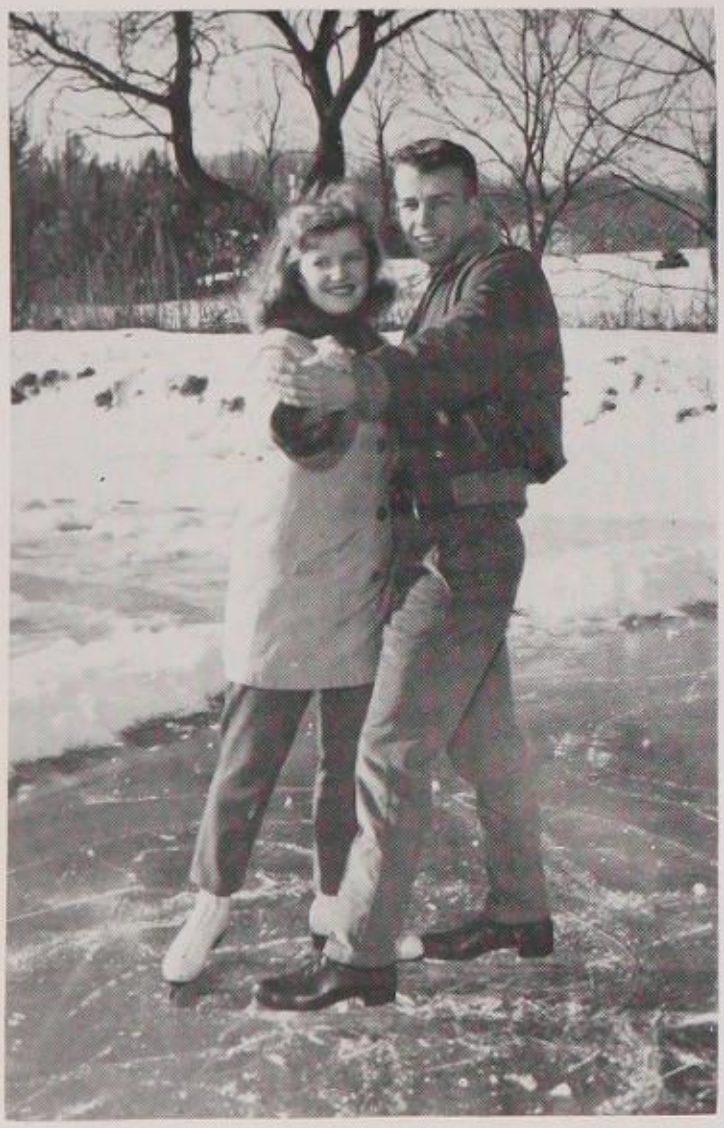
Senior Celebrities

Allen Steere holds his head with pain as Judy English and Joan Stanton strain his musical endurance by pounding out their rendition of "Chopsticks." These three were chosen as the most talented in the fine arts.



Waiting for the first strains of "The Skaters' Waltz," Gonda Rider and Rick Busch, best dancers, prove that their prowess on ice is equal to their excellence on the dance floor

Jack Winder, one-half of the cutest couple, perfects his stroke as he gives golf instructions to his admiring other half, Diane Irmscher. How could Diane miss with that club?

Sally Capps, girl most likely to succeed, grasps the guide rope with confidence as she steers the toboggan of the future down its path. Bob Shine, outstanding in scholarship, and Jim Carter, also most scholarly and boy most likely to succeed, glide down the trail with Sally, who was also chosen outstanding in activities.

With a shake of chivalry and a pinch of congeniality, Chris Parrott, boy with the best personality and most perfect gentleman, shows Evilou North, most perfect lady, and Sheri DeYoung, girl with the best personality, what ingredients go into a successful pizza.

"I give up!" Sylvia Ehrman, outstanding in activities, has stopped trying to divert the attention of best athletes Bob Bolyard and Steve Hargan and has decided to watch the boys' pool game for pointers.

Meeting the Challenge...

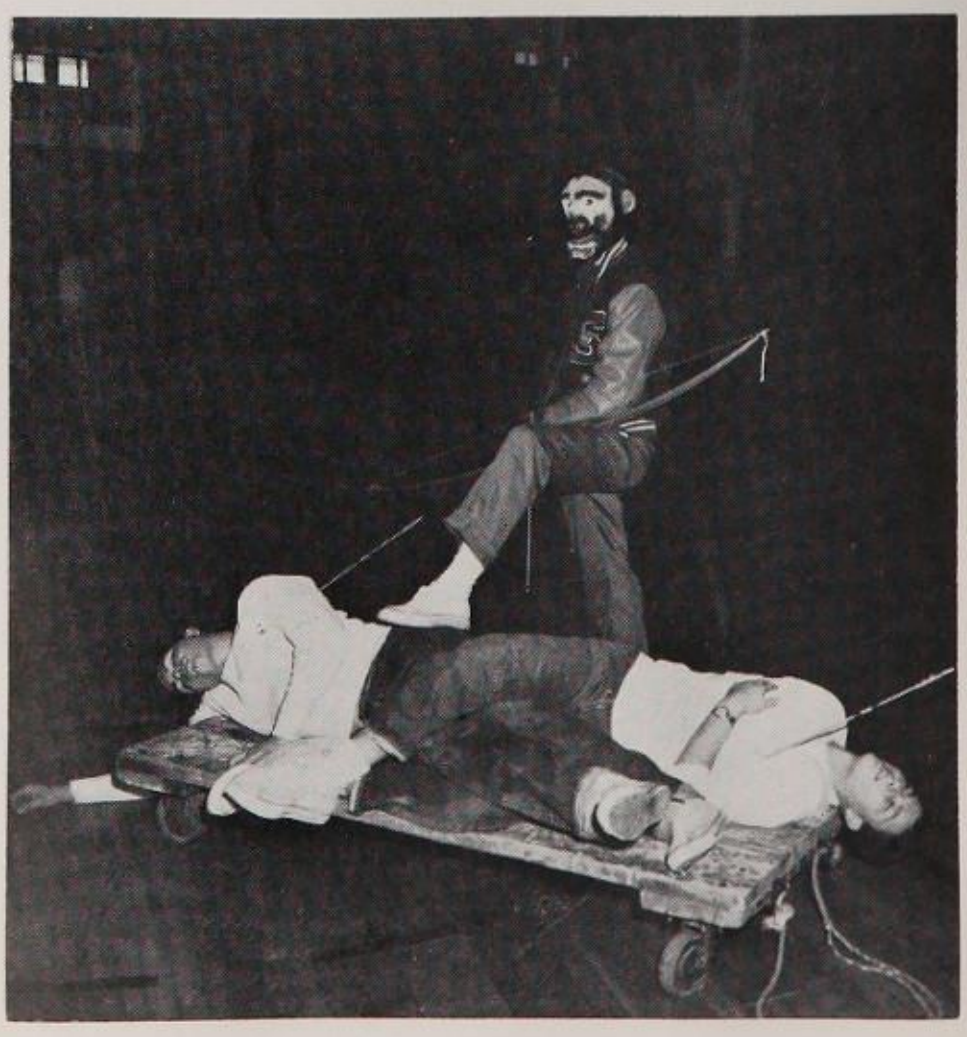
Senior Class President Chris Parrott deals out a scolding to the student body concerning their lack of school spirit during the football season.



"Thor Oga the Ghoul," alias Tom Ogles, demonstrates the power of the mighty Archers as he conquers John Somers and Steve Pohl, who are posing as Central Catholic Irishmen in a pep session skit.

Underclassmen

Potential success awaits all underclassmen at South Side who are endowed with the means of advancing their goals during the remainder of their high school education. All the implements of scholastic improvement are within grasp, awaiting only the moment when each diligently applies himself to the means which are offered.

Planning this year's junior class events are standing, left to right. Tom McMahan, president; and Larry Lee, vice-president. Seated are Cheryl Summers, social council member; Debby Brooke, social council chairman; Diane Fredrick, secretary-treasurer; and Sharon Carrel, social council member. Pictured below are the sponsors, Mrs. Mildred Luse and Mr. Richard Sage.

Bridging the gap between sports and dancing, Brenda Dull and Stan Alfeld, best dancers, give the signal to Ken Robinson and Ken Leakey, best athletes, to slide through.

Lower left: Cheers! The cutest boy and girl, Dave Wallace and Debby Brooke, drink a toast to success in future years.

Lower center: Brown enough? Toasting their marshmallows to a crisp is the junior cutest couple, Susie Bumgerdner and Bob Ramage.

Lower right: Swamped with work, these energetic juniors breeze through another study session. Chosen for scholarship, Larry Lee and Babette Jones combine their brains with the vitality of Diane Fredrick and Susie Horth, outstanding in extracurricular activities.

Spellbinders Tim Grodrian, Mike Carter, Steve McDonald, and Fred Schoen bewitch the junior class with words and music at the annual Junior Banquet.

Officers and sponsors piloting the sophomore class are left to right, front row, Mrs. Marjorie Armstrong; Nancy Robinson, president; Tonya Hines, vice-president; Gary Probst, secretary-treasurer; back row, Mr. David Cramer; Dave Brumm and Bob Lohman, social council members; and Jerry Klaehn, chairman of the social council.

"Walk ten paces, turn, and fire." Julie Wadlington and Jerry Klaehn, cutest couple, prepare to fight a duel with loaded water pistols.

Richard Fisher, Margie Terry, Rosemary Capps, and Gary Probst form a "heap big" totem pole of studies. Richard and Gary won recognition for outstanding scholarship, and Rosemary and Margie were voted most active in extracurricular work.

"Dead eye" Bob Lohman aims his shooter as Gerd Biewald watches, hoping that Bob will not knock his marbles out of the circle. Bob and Gerd were voted best athletes.

"A little higher" remarks Marla Habecker, best girl dancer, to Nancy Robinson, cutest girl, as she demonstrates a classical ballet movement. Ably supporting the "prima donnas" are Dave Tipton, best boy dancer, and Sid Sheray, most handsome boy.

Nancy Robinson, sophomore class president, tells the mothers about the coming year's events at one of the fall teas sponsored by the PTA.

The special second year Latin class presents an original play for the entertainment of the other Latin classes.

Upper left: Barbara Nelson and Christie Counsman, outstanding in extra-curricular activities, include relaxing and creative pastimes in their busy schedules. Barb was also chosen for scholarship.

Center left: Today's answer to Romeo and Juliet . . . Paul Cochran serenading Barbie Rea. Paul also was outstanding in scholarship.

Lower left: Best athletes Bob Williams and Don Hilsmier look bewildered as dancers Debby Decker and Jim Barker demonstrate the diagram. Maybe they thought it was a new pivot?

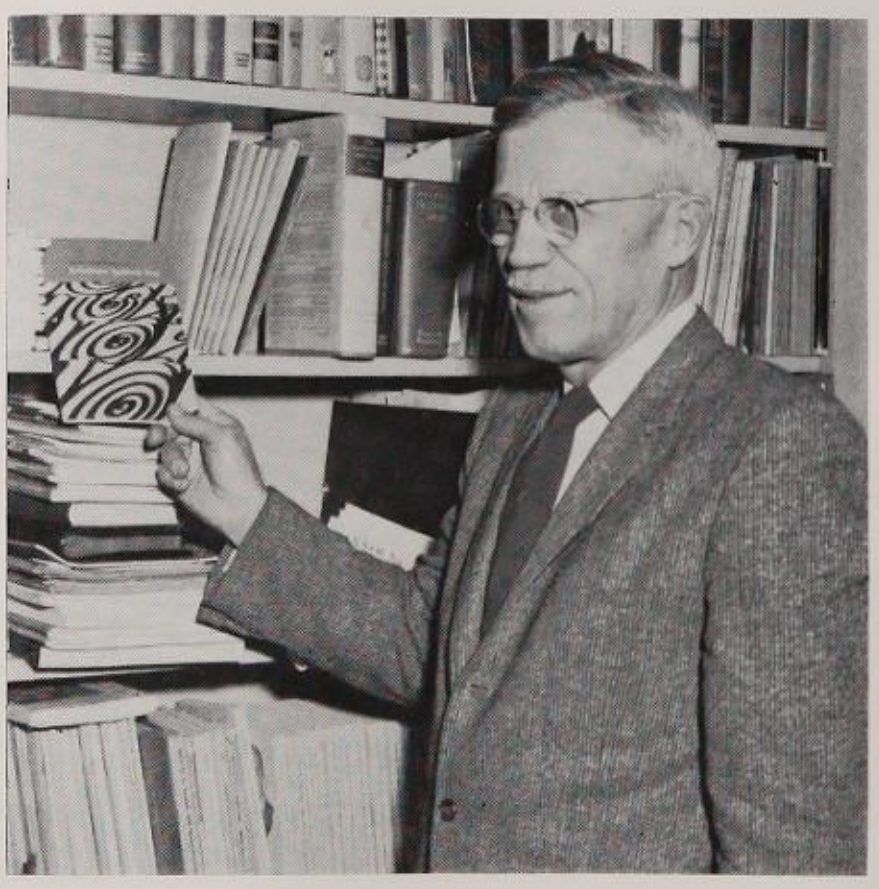
Faculty

Developing our characters and teaching us how to think are entrusted to a profession which, more than any other, embodies the key to the future success of our nation. The task of molding us into citizens who must be prepared to accept the leadership of tomorrow is the epitome of the profession. The faculty of South Side is representative of this assemblage which is dedicated to the improvement of us, the youth of the nation.

May 25, 1961

Members of the Graduating Class:

The class of 1961 is the largest to graduate from South Side High School, almost as large as the first four classes combined. In it are students of varying degrees of preparation, with widely differing plans and ambitions. What lies ahead for these people, and are they ready for the problems and opportunities which face them?

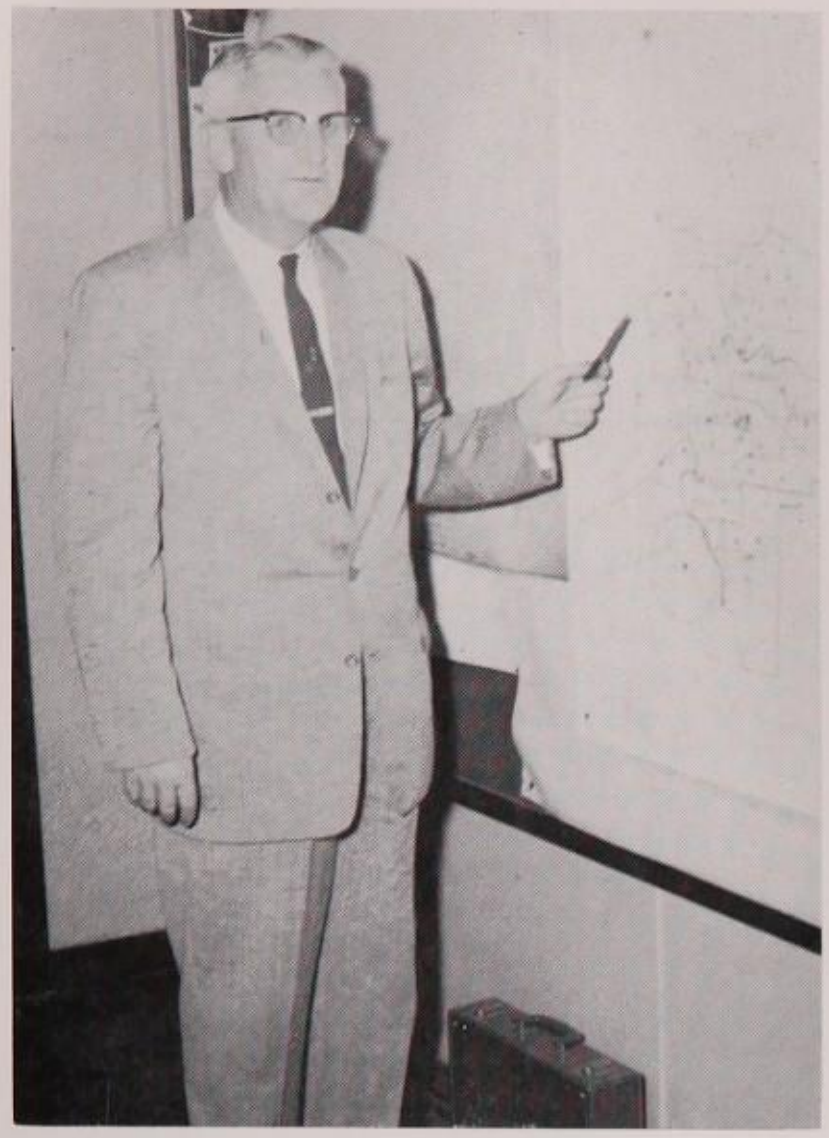


The future seems confused and uncertain, but it has always been that way. There are many unsolved problems of economics, national aspirations and personal relationships; these problems are certainly magnified in our day of rapid transportation and instant communication. But these sometimes frightening problems furnish the frontiers for the future; the solutions challenge the best effort of each 1961 graduate; the answers will bring happiness and rewards in proportion to the abilities and work used in their solution.

Certainly the members of this class should be prepared to face whatever the coming years may offer. They are the beneficiaries of a nation-wide program of education which is far better and more extensive than that of any other time or place. Additional educational opportunities have been provided by a community interested in educational, spiritual, and moral development. I believe that most of the members of the class of '61 have taken advantage of the offerings provided for them. If they have acquired information, habits of industry and responsibility, and have started to learn to make good judgments, their future, and that of the world, will be that much better.

R. Nelson Snider
Principal

Pathfinders . . .



Mr. Aaron T. Lindley points to one of the many school districts he supervises as Superintendent of Fort Wayne Community Schools. Providing capable leadership necessary for an effective school system, Superintendent Lindley is now in his eighth year as director.

Mr. Ora Davis checks one of the many reference books he keeps as an aid to better helping Kelly pupils. As guidance director, Mr. Davis supplies students with jobs and college information.

Helping Kellys to better prepare for the future is Miss Pauline Van Gorder, dean of girls, whose duty is to aid students with their problems.

Working as a team, the three office secretaries of South Side prepare to take a message. Mrs. Janet Weicker, left, relays the note from the telephone to Miss Marsha Klaehn, who gives it to Miss Frances Stobaugh, waiting at the typewriter.

Athletics

Whether blasting from a sandtrap or smashing through a seven-man line, a boy or girl who participates in athletics receives an education which is an integral part of his development into a mature person. Through athletics, he enjoys the companionship and teamwork which are inherent in any sport; and he is taught sportsmanship and is made aware of the intensive principles of competition which will benefit him as an adult.

Archers Herald Winning Season,

South Side's 1960 varsity football squad chalked up the first winning season in seven years. The Archers provided many exciting moments, deciding three games in the final two minutes of play. Also rediscovered was the art of scoring touchdowns. The Green and White sported an effective, hard-running offense which was quite capable of breaking loose with long gainers. In addition to exploding many games, this devastating attack kept opposing defense on their heels.

The Kellys started the season by tying an inexperienced Elmhurst squad 0-0 in the Jamboree. However the Archers had a 6-0 advantage before being tied 6-6 by Anderson in the final seconds of play at Anderson.

The Green then avenged themselves with a 20-6 upset of Indianapolis Shortridge at home. On the road, however, they suffered a 33-6 lacing at the hands of a fired-up Hammond Morton crew. The Shortridge game was the first indication of South's improved offense. At Hammond the Archers were caught unprepared by a keyed Morton crew at their homecoming.

In a city-series clash the next week, Bob Bolyard raced for one 85-yard touchdown and then skirted end for five yards and the winning touchdown in the last minute of play during a 14-12 decision over North Side at Northrop Field. Central copped South's next city-series venture 12-6.

Bob Shine returned a kick-off 85 yards to help beat Warsaw 13-2. The Archers returned to South and beat Goshen 19-12. At South the following week-end, the Kellys edged Penn Township of Mishawaka 14-7 in the last minute with the help of two pass interference penalties. The Archers ran into one of the State's top powers in the last game of the season. A rugged Central Catholic outfit pounded out a 14-0 victory over the Bowmen to win the City Championship.

Place Five On All-City Team

In this year's all-city selections, five Archers placed on the first and second teams, two on the first and three on the number two team. Halfback Bob Bolyard and guard Bob Griffiths were named to the first squad while fullback John Somers, end Chris Parrott, and tackle Jim Dawson copped second team positions.

South Side's grid squad went into the last game of the season with a chance to tie for the City Series championship. However, a high-powered Central Catholic team proved itself the most potent crew in this area by humbling all local opposition. The Archers met the Irish onslaught very creditably and put up a rugged fight against a team whose lone defeat was at the hands of mighty South Bend Washington.

Hardwood Season Yields Sectional Championship

After finishing in a third place tie with Concordia in the City Series, the South Side Archers bounced back and upset all contenders in the Fort Wayne Sectional Tournament, only to be defeated a week later in the Regionals. The Kellys were up for the Sectionals; they passed, shot, and generally played as well as any other cage squad in the state. Monroeville was first to fall victim to the Archer arrows in an overwhelming 79-29 rout. In the second game, the Green humbled county power New Haven with almost flawless ball. The third match pitted South against Huntertown which resulted in another Archer victory.

In the final game, the Bowmen came up against City Series champion Central. In that game, the tight Archer zone forced the Tigers to hurry their shots and consequently, frequently miss the mark. That, coupled with sharp shooting and near-perfect offensive play, paved the way for a resounding Archer victory for their fourteenth Sectional championship, their fifth in the last six years.

However, a week later, in the Regional Tourney, the spirit had waned and the once whetted Archer shafts had lost their edges. After an uninspired and unimpressive victory over Kendallville in the afternoon, the Kellys bowed to a very sharp Berne Bear squad in a 56-42 defeat.

In City Series competition, the Archer's third place finish was much lower than they had placed for a number of years. They only held victories over Elmhurst, Central, and Concordia, falling before arch-rival North Side twice, to Central once, and once to Central Catholic.

The regular season, as a whole, was very exciting. The Archers closed the competition with 11 wins and nine losses which embodied many close games including a trio of overtime contests. Moreover, although the Green conquered other teams by as much as 39 tallies, they went under only twice by more than ten points—12 at the hands of Michigan City, and 15 by rugged Froebel. The Kellys had proud victories over ranked teams Fort Wayne Central and sharp Goshen.

During the Christmas vacation, the Holiday Tournament again exerted its occult powers as South dropped the championship game in a 56-57 overtime to Valparaiso

Tracksters Show Strength In Sprints, Field Events

Head track coach, Mr. Robert Gernand, faced the 1961 track season with one of the toughest track squads in recent years at South Side. The boys were uniformly strong and well-represented and more than adequately filled the places vacated by graduates.

Tom Duff and Karl Bandemer returned to do well in both sprint events, alternating first and second places with one another. Carl Johnson again ran the hurdles in fine style while Junior Nate Norment hung close on his heels. In the 440 yard dash, Bob Shine and Bob Bolyard came on strong. Bolyard also participated in the half mile. In the endurance events, Al Rainbolt and Jim Porter clocked good times in the mile run. At length, the Archer relay squads were up to their usual par.

The Green were also strong in the field events. Jim Dawson and John Somers led the field in the shot put. Both boys threw the weight over fifty feet. Dan Belschner cleared heights around six feet in the high jump, while Don Eisenacher excelled in the pole vault.

Nerves are tense as Archer sprinters Bandemer, Duff, Werling, and Johnson line up for the gun to sound in the 100-yard dash.

The cross bar poses little problem for senior vaulter Don Eisenacher as he easily clears it by a wide margin.

The Archer cindermen faced a very tough and exciting schedule this season. Highlights of the year included dual meets with track powers Kokomo and Elkhart as well as participation in the North Side, Delphi, and Lima relays. The Kellys also added new city school Bishop Luers to their list of competitors. The Green also contended with other city rivals Central, Central Catholic, North Side, and Elmhurst.

Coach Porky Holt's cross country squad turned out a fine season this year, finishing 7-3-1 in the regular season, copping third place in the sectionals, and participating in state competition. The Archer thinlies' greatest asset last fall was balance. Sophomore Dennis Jones consistently led the squad home in time well under or a little over ten minutes. Close on his heels usually came Rainbolt, McMillen, Lee, or Schmitz. The remaining thinlies spaced themselves well, keeping the score low.

Next season also looks promising as better than half of the varsity squad will be returning. Furthermore, this year's reserve squad also looked very strong, finishing with an 11-1 record.

Five Returnees Spark Golf

Golf Coach, Mr. Warren Hoover, had a veteran squad for the 1961 season with John Biteman, Vaughn Correll, Dave Stewart, Jack Harms, and Jack Winder returning from last year's golf team. Biteman and Correll were members of the foursome which represented South Side in the 1960 State Golf Tournament. These boys, with the addition of Senior Steve Pohl, put up a formidable front in golf competition.

The Archers faced a tough schedule this year, which included two triangle meets and a city tourney. Elmhurst provided the stiffest competition in town with almost the entire team returning from last year.

Veterans Lead Net Assault

Coach Everett Havens had experience on his side this season with veterans Steve Cook, Larry Chen, Dave Briggs, and Jim Lantz returning from last season's team. Ron Heathman, Steve Morley, and Al Purdy added the extra punch which made the team strong.

Concordia proved to be the strongest competition with another of the endless string of Novaks leading their team.

The Archer netmen undertook this year a new and longer schedule, which included sixteen dual matches. They also participated in the Muncie Burris Singles Tournament and initiated the South Side Doubles Invitational.

Girls Vie For Trophy

Promoting an interest in wholesome athletic activities for girls, GAA again concluded a successful and satisfying year. Three hundred girls were active in over ten sports including speedball, volleyball, track, softball, tumbling, ping-pong, and badminton. Upperclass girls met on Mondays after school, and freshman girls participated every Friday night.

The sponsors of the club, Mrs. Alice Keegan and Mrs. Marjorie Armstrong, helped the girls through the year and repeated their string of interesting and well-received Spring Shows. The theme of this year's show was "In My Little Corner of the World" and consisted of dancing, tumbling, volleyball, and stunts on the trampoline with everyone in the department taking part.

As an award for their efforts, members received their numerals, letters, or gold pins at the annual GAA banquet in the cafeteria.

Right: High point award winner, Valerie Callahan, and the runner-up Rita Hessert, participated not only in the regular activities, but also in bowling, skating, and hiking.

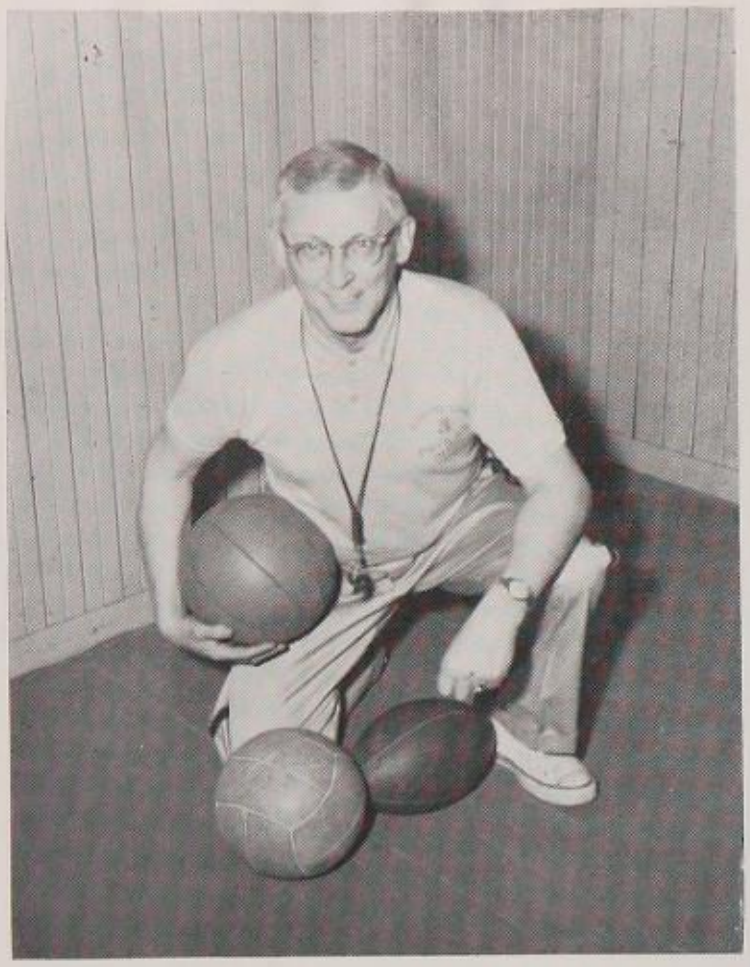
Sports Within

The South Side intramural program is now in the thirty-second year of its activity. This program, under the able guidance of Mr. Clair Motz, has grown to the status of one of the most organized high school intramural programs in this area.

The intramural program provides organized competition both for varsity athletes and, more important, for those boys who are not able to participate in varsity sports.

The three weight divisions, light, middle, and heavy help to equalize the competition. Another division within the intramural program is that of noon league and night league. These give equal time for participation for those boys who have noon or after-school conflicts.



Under the direction of Mr. Clair Motz, the intramural program is run smoothly and efficiently throughout the school year.

Bob Weiss and Tom Wooding, left to right, demonstrate the form that carried them to the middle and heavyweight tennis championship titles.

The "Ying Yangs," led by Bill Ausderan, captured the title in the rugged intramural lightweight football division.

Basketball, the favorite of intramural boys, is in full swing as the "Slide Rules" and "Chiefs" work their way up the noon league bracket.

Dave Morell and Jeff Baker try to out-think each other in the intramural chess tournament.

Speedsters David Jones and Gary Butz are the light and middle-weight cross country champs this year.

"Heave" is the cry as two intramural tug-of-war teams stretch the rope in a deadlock in a night-league contest.

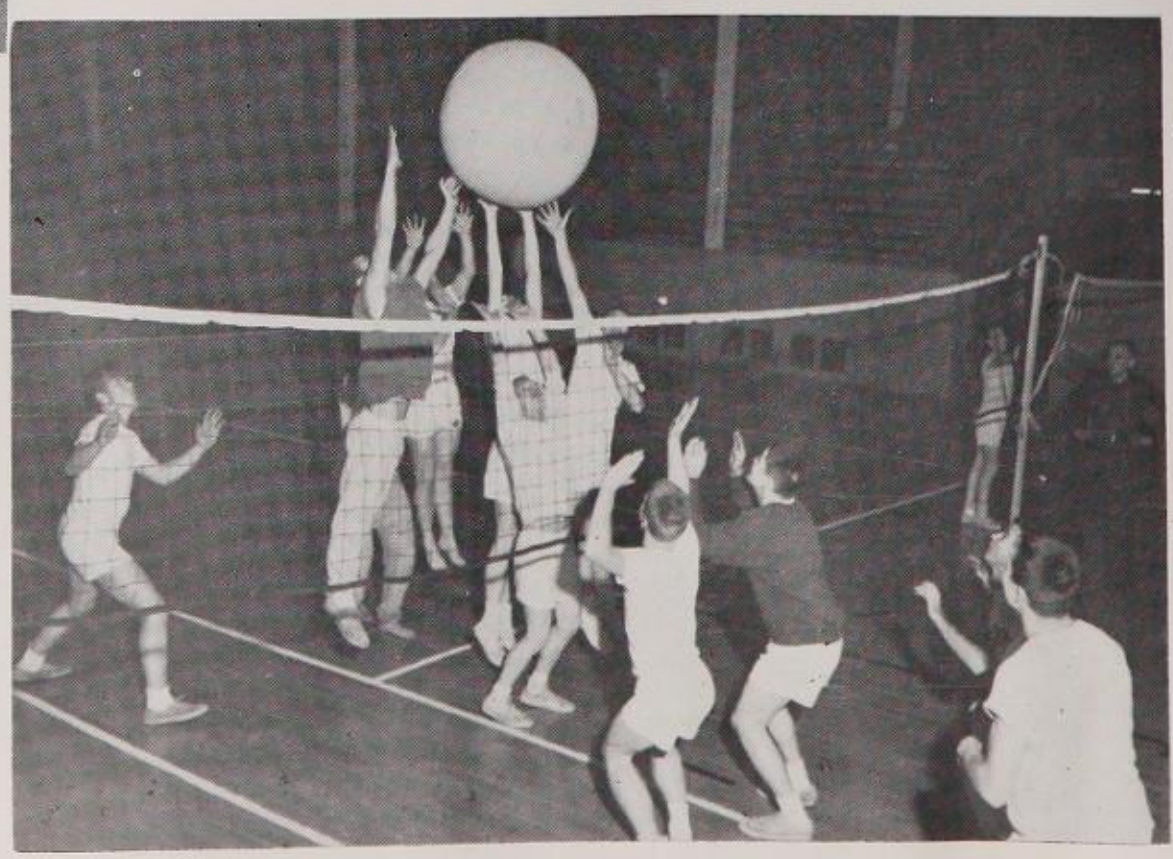
The gruelling intramural wrestling form is demonstrated by Mike Stedge and Glen Crosier as the rest of the wrestlers observe.



Fast and furious is the action as two intramural giant volleyball teams battle it out.

Organizations

Knowing that life's seconds are eternities, Archers continually seek to further their interests and abilities in a ceaseless effort to enrich their lives and provide services to the school and community. Most South Side students participate in extra-curricular activities in order to obtain a medium through which their creative talents may be expressed.

Totem Depicts Decade of Destiny

SALLY CAPPS

EVILOU NORTH

Last spring marked the beginning of preparations for the 1961 Totem. After the editors selected the events which would best represent the many facets of Archer school life, picture taking began. Sometimes the desire to publish a distinctive book proved rather disastrous; but common sense prevailed, and by the end of March, the majority of Totem copy had been written, proofread, rewritten, and sent to the printers. Although mistakes sometimes proved discouraging, almost to the point of despair, they were far outweighed by the excitement and fun of publishing a record of school life.

The circulation staff worked to the peak and surpassed all previous records by selling over 2,050 books.

Already full of new ideas for the 1962 Totem, Babette Jones, editor, and Diane Fredrick, associate editor, begin drawing their preliminary dummy.

Checking the point cards for new members of the 1500 Club are the officers, left to right, Ann Golden, secretary; Margie Havens, treasurer; and Sally Capps, president. Absent when the picture was taken was Joan Stanton, vice-president.

For its record of superior publications, The South Side Times received this year, as it has for thirty-eight years, the medalist rating, the highest honor given by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association. Quill and Scroll, International Honorary Society for high school journalists, also awarded the paper the International Honor Rating and the George H. Gallup Award.

Ably assisted by Mr. James Rohrabaugh, publications adviser, the four general managers, Bill Stellhorn, Jim Carter, Bob Shine, and Linda Silverman, supervised the publication of a newspaper which truly lived up to its honors. Each week found the student body well pleased with the latest edition.

Student approval of the paper was shown in subscriptions as every homeroom achieved 100 per cent sales for the fifth straight semester. This record was far over that of any other city school for both the spring and fall semesters.

Through the efforts of Mr. Rohrabaugh, two of the general managers and the Totem editors were able to attend the Columbia University's annual press convention. Highlights of the trip included their appearance on the Dave Garroway Show and Youth Forum and their visit to the Overseas Press Club.

During the past year, Mr. James Rohrabaugh has devoted much time to the success of the Times, the Totem, and the two new publications, the Green Book and Pegasus. His faithful assistance to members of these staffs has proved invaluable.

Pegasus, Greenbook Feature Creativity, School Rules

Ellen McCarron, editor, proofreads her work in the Green Book, one of this year's new publications.

Two new publications have been introduced to the student body this school year. The Green Book, which is edited by Ellen McCarron, will be a catalogue of the rules and curriculum of the school. A discontinued publication, it will be issued again this fall for the first time in 20 years to every member of the student body and faculty. This issue will then be given to every incoming student for the next four years.

Pegasus, the Archer literary magazine, provides students with a culmination of their best literary efforts. The title, taken from Greek mythology, denotes a winged horse which poets were said to mount when they needed inspiration.

Outstanding poems, short stories, and essays written in class were submitted by the English teachers; and some students were invited to write articles. The magazine attempts to present an example of Kelly students' creative efforts.

Edited by Barb Steiner, the book was placed on sale for the first time this spring under the direction of Stan Redding, circulation manager. Also aiding in the publication were Joan Stanton, assistant editor; Sheri DeYoung, art editor; and Cindy Miller and Jim Carter, editorial staff members.

Supplementing English . . .

. . . taught in the classroom, the Philalethian Literary Society sponsors original short story and poem contests for the members. Advised by Mrs. Evlyn Spray, Philo is open to all junior and senior girls with an average of B or better in English.

As Beth Curley presses Susie Bond's hand, other Philo officers seem to be intent on their own parts. Margie Mercer, Brenda Arnold, Cindy Miller, Pam Brown, and Jan Martindale, who is talking a blue streak, are caught in a scene from their skit.

Literary ability . . .

. . . is stimulated in freshmen and sophomore girls through Meterites. Under the direction of Mrs. Florence Emshwiller, the club has the same membership qualifications and generally the same activities as Philo, its "big sister" club.

Is it worth all this, girls? Even though they have sacrificed a Saturday morning to decorate for their after-game dance, these Meterites seem fairly cheerful about it.

"The winner and new champion . . ." Sally Sweet presents Rosie Capps with the Meterite high point cup. Looking on are Patty Bailey, Betsy Adams, and Barb Altevogt, who were also recognized for their outstanding work in the club.

Furthering interests . . .

. . . and developing skills in speech activities are the objectives of Wranglers. With Mr. Robert Storey advising, members participate in speech meets around the state.

Dramatic productions . . .

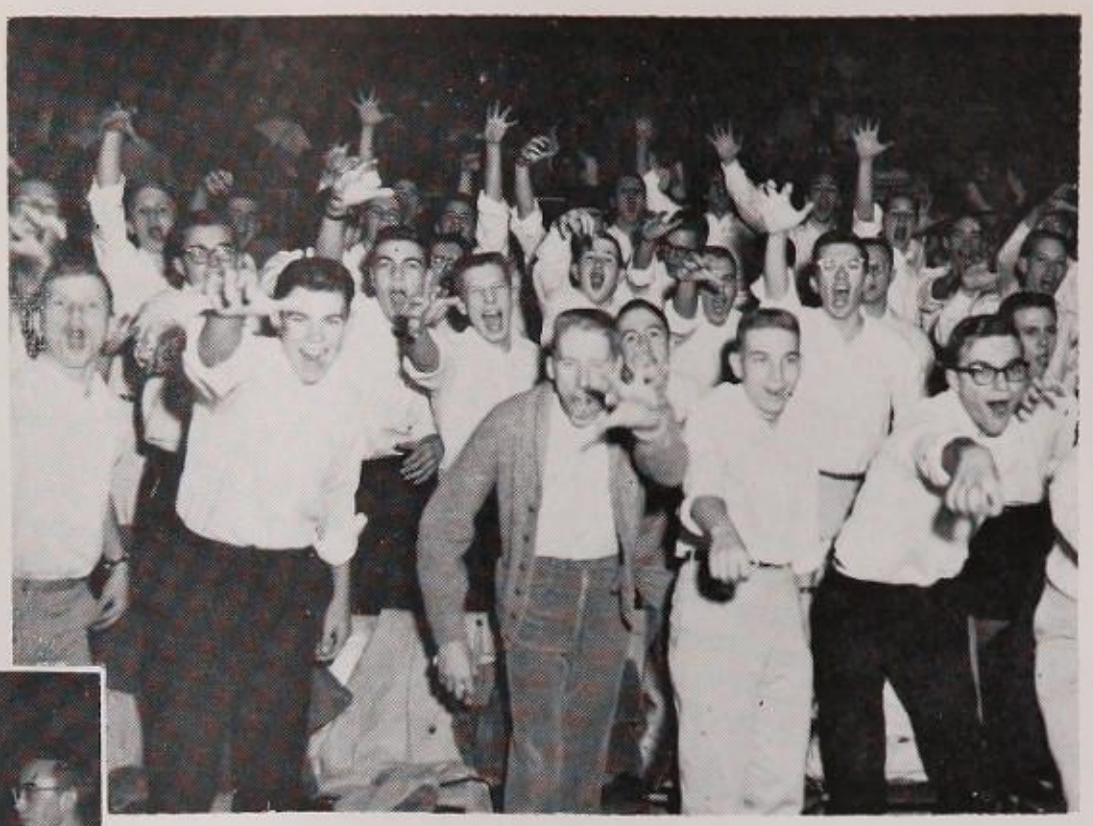
. . . of the school and promotion of interest in the students and faculty for a greater appreciation of the dramatic arts are achieved through Masque and Gavel. The members are assisted by Miss Ann Arber, sponsor.

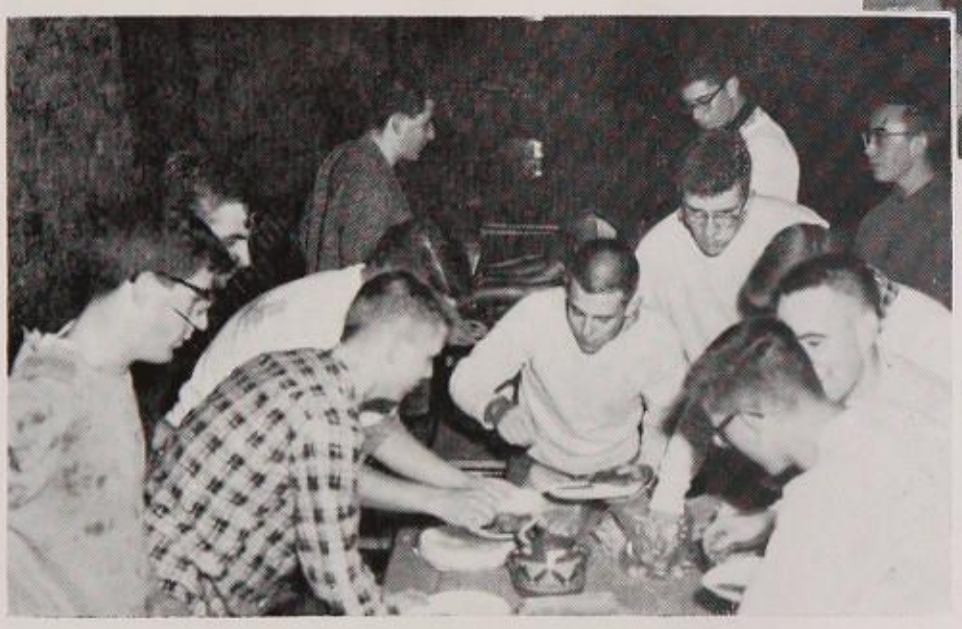
Help! Murder! Police! Logan Smith, left, and Shari Busch scream in horror while Sue Hiller faints in the arms of Tom Felger after finding Steve Black murdered (?) in a practice for a Masque and Gavel play.

"To be or not to be . . ." Steve McDonald explains some points about the next Masque and Gavel meeting to other officers, left to right, Diane Fredrick, Martha Lanning, Chuck Weinraub, Phyllis Pierson, and Barbara Ga[illegible]

High standards . . .

. . . of Christian character are instilled in junior and senior boys by Hi-Y. The members, aided by Mr. Robert Weber, provide a Bible reading every Monday morning, publish a school directory, and offer service projects for the YMCA.





Gr - - - r - - r! Archer Hi-Yers give a big roar for their team. Organized this year, the boys' cheerblock has added much to the school spirit at basketball games.

Where are the potato chips? Tired and hungry Hi-Y members forget the tumbles they took in the intra-club football game of their annual fall picnic and dig into their food.

Good sportsmanship . . .

. . . conduct, and character are the standards emphasized in the Lettermen's Club sponsored by Mr. Ora Davis. Composed of boys who have earned a letter for participation in sports, the club, among its services, conducts a collection of canned goods for the needy at Christmas.

"Yo-ho-heave-ho" . . . While transporting books for teachers between semesters, Karl Bandemer, alias "The Thinker," Steve Pohl, and Dennis Graham absorb some deep thoughts as Bob Bolyard and Carl Johnson lend their muscles.

" . . . One nation, under God, . . . " Lettermen, ably led by Bob Shine, open one of their meetings with the Pledge of Allegiance. Chris Parrott, Mr. Ora Davis, sponsor, John Somers, and Steve Pohl also help officiate.

Congrats, Becky! Annette Plesniak, right, presents Becky Davis with the Randolph Jacobs Trophy, which she won for her outstanding service work.

Willing workers . . .

. . . lend their free periods to perform various service duties for members of the faculty. Sponsor Mr. Ora Davis keeps record of the points that students have earned toward their pins, and he also helps in the planning of the annual Service Club potluck.

Enlightenment and enjoyment . . .

. . . are combined in the services rendered by members of the Library Club. The girls do the every-day work of the library for Miss Willodeen Price, head librarian and club sponsor, in their free periods and after school.

"My, my! Isn't checking out books a ball?" Annette Plesniak seems to find library work enjoyable while Susie Bond and Diane Fredrick assist Ellen Stanbery and Judy Conley

"Oooo! That is really sharp!" Pam Olson, center, exclaims over Judy Godman's arrangement painting for an Honorary Arts display as Nancy Vanderford, right, looks on.

Chosen members . . .

. . . of the Honorary Arts Club aim toward a workable knowledge of many forms of specialized art. Invited to join by Mr. Leon Smith, sponsor, these students delve into the fine points and details of more advanced projects.

Artistic interests . . .

. . . continue to develop in the variety of media used by members of the Art Club. Under the sponsorship of Mrs. Ruth Fleck, the club fosters a greater appreciation for the usefulness of art in everyday life.

Unhand her, you cad! Bill Jons and Vickie Miller struggle violently over Susie Martin in a skit for Art Club.

Biology Experimenters? One wonders what kind of experimentation will develop from a mother white rat and her newly born litter. Evidently Ed Kimble, Bill Wilder, and John McNett, left to right, are searching for the answer.

Math Section members seem to find some geometrical figures very amusing. Mr. Don Weaver, third from left, is explaining some of the theories involving the structures.

Scientific aptitude . . .

. . . in members is encouraged by the Jr. Academy of Science. Divided into five sections, math, chemistry, radio, biology, and astro-physics, the Academy holds joint meetings. The club is sponsored by Mr. Robert Weber and Mr. Don T. Weaver.

While Carl Foust, left, and Bernard Stier, right, adjust the opaque projector for a club meeting, Carl Knabe seriously contemplates the pearls of wisdom he has received from his fellow Astro-Physicists.

Careful now! Chemistry section members Jim Ridland and Bill Mueller concoct a solution to be distilled for unknown uses as John McNett looks on.

Through kindness . . .

. . . to the people of the community, Junior Red Cross endeavors to promote a better understanding of the needs of their fellow men. Mr. John Arnold, sponsor, guides the club members in choosing worthwhile projects in which their aid will be the most beneficial.

"How about . . . " Sherry Hall, left, and Tamara Beatty, right, discuss possibilities of a winner of the Earl E. Sterner Leadership Award, while Judy Hollister gazes admiringly at the trophy which is given annually to an outstanding member of Junior Red Cross.

Jr. Red Cross officers, left to right, Sally Dill, George Gosheff, Alice Ashton, and Nancy Nichols, outline a plan of events for the second semester activities with the help of Mr. John Arnold.

Promoting safety . . .

. . . in the school and in the community is the main objective of Safety Council members. Guided by Mr. Glen Stebing and Miss Virginia Ayers, representatives from each homeroom and each club keep Archers informed of traffic violations and place warning posters around the school.

Slow down and live! Safety Council members, left to right, Linda Brubaker, Jon Shopoff, Tamara Vyhovsky, Sheri Koch, and Barb Nelson discuss one of the mottoes displayed on the auto safety posters which they distributed to all homerooms and hung in the halls.

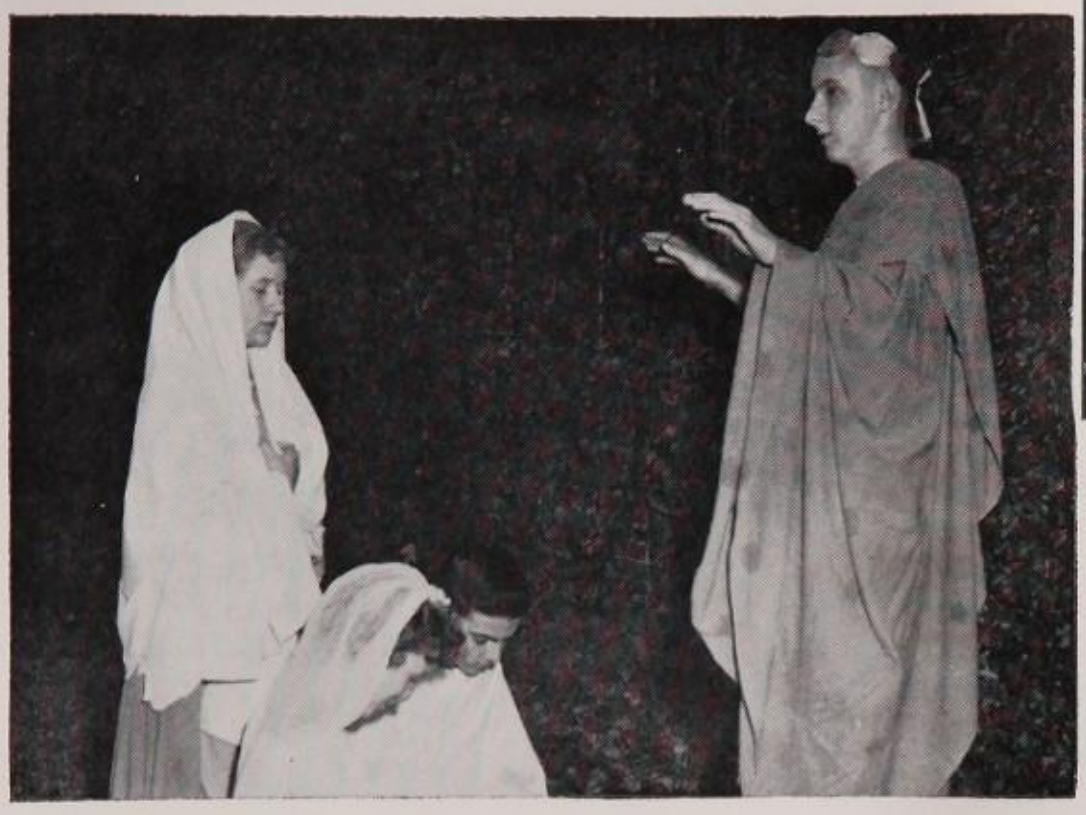
Roman history . . .

. . . and study of the classics occupy the interests of the members of Societas Latina. Students with an average of a B or better in Latin are encouraged to join by sponsors, Mrs. Anne Redmond and Mr. Fred Hellman.



Mrs. Anne Redmond points out some suggestions to the Latin Club officers. Left to right, they are Janice Ferber, Paul Mittelstadt, and Tom Wooding.

"Vos coniungo . . . " Pontifex Lyall Morrill speaks the binding words to Marcia Disler and Dick Waterfield during the Roman wedding simulated by the Latin Club. Anita Ferber acts as maid of honor.

Formulating scripts . . .

. . . and organizing and presenting the distinctive assemblies and the annual talent show comprise the duties of members of Assemblies Workshop. Counseled by Miss Ann Arber, members compile their creative ideas for practical usage.

"And if we put him on the north end of the gym . . . " Susie Horth shows, left to right, Jody Reiff, Miss Ann Arber, Diane Irmscher, and Sharon Longenberger some of her suggestions for the Easter Assembly.

Designing principles . . .

. . . are explored more fully than can be accomplished in the classroom by members of Designers' Associated. Sponsored by Mr. Thomas Polite, the boys plan automobiles and houses as well as doing general drafting.

Richard Hoff proudly displays the certificate of merit he received for his model car in the foreground to Mr. Polite and Donald Rohrbaugh.

Future homemakers . . .

. . . are provided an opportunity to learn more in their chosen field by Vesta. Named for the Roman goddess of hearth and home, the club is sponsored by Mrs. Lois Murphy.

se come to order?" Jean Schott, ...g of Vesta as other officers, ... respective reports.

Field trips . . .

. . . and special speakers help to make up the variously planned programs of Know-Your-City during the year. Under the direction of Mr. Jack Weicker and Mr. Richard Block, sponsors, the members study past, present, and future facts of Fort Wayne.

Selling concessions . . .

. . . at home games is the main objective of the Archers' Booster Club. Mr. Laverne Harader, sponsor, organizes the duties of the members, which also include financial support of the cheerleaders.

Easy now! Diane Gebhard, right, appears worried about Diane Aubrey's pouring. Other Booster Club members Janice Bodkin, left, and Sally Gilbert also help with soft drinks during a basketball game.

"Another penny please." Boo

Classroom films . . .

. . . are made possible through the efforts of members of the Visual Education program, who donate their free periods to operate the movie projectors. Mr. Ernest Walker sponsors the club and shows the members how to operate the projection machines.

"Mickey Mouse or Peter Pan?" Actually John Byer, Claudia Bradley, and John Varner are trying to determine what some of the action is in the film they are cataloguing for the Visual-Education Club.

"Light for the projector comes from this lamp," instructs Mr. Ernest Walker, sponsor, to Ray Lerch, Mike Hogg, and Jim Evans, who are learning techniques of showing class films.

Effective use . . .

. . . of photographic skills is the aim of the Camera Club members. Every phase of the art is studied, and the students are encouraged to develop, print, and enlarge their own pictures under the direction of Mr. Richard Shellenberger, sponsor.

Prepare to fire! Nancy Rose issues instructions to Girls' Rifle Club members who are readying their guns for a chance to improve their scores of hitting the target.

Junior marksmen . . .

. . . attempt to improve their skill by diligently practicing during Boys' and Girls' Rifle Club meetings. By learning the care and handling of firearms under the direction of Mr. Stephen Berg, Mrs. Mildred Luse, and Mr. Alfred Hemmer, the boys and girls develop sportsmanship and marksmanship. Both teams are registered by the National Rifle Association. The girls enter in monthly postal matches with schools in the entire country, and the boys regularly engage in matches with area teams.

Ready, aim, fire! Riflemen Rickey Thompson, Jim Feustel, Dave Flanigan, and Keith Lontz demonstrate the four major shooting positions before trying to hit that elusive target.

"Take it away" . . . Frank Lewis stands ready to reel the target which Dave Schele is holding down at the other end of the rifle range while Dick Platt, left, Mickey Miller, and Jim Walker ponder their coming display of marksmanship.

Entertainment . . .

Grace and poise . . .

. . . are the qualities of the girls who participate in advanced modern dancing and advanced tumbling under the direction of Mrs. Alice Keegan and Mrs. Marjorie Armstrong. During the year the Modern Dancers perfect many routines which they later present at the Spring Show. For this same performance, the advanced tumblers exhibit their acrobatic skills on the trampoline and the mats.

Contagious enthusiasm . . .

. . . is the most notable characteristic of the five lively varsity cheerleaders. Sylvia Ehrman, Marla Habecker, Sharon Carrel, Jeannie Carroll, and Sally Dill have shown their agility and eagerness at each game and pep session. They were primarily responsible for retaining good sportsmanship in the attitude of the fans.

With Sylvia Ehrman as captain of the squad, the girls have been very busy throughout the school year. The various pep sessions are under their direction as well as the leading of cheers at games. The varsity group attended several cheerleading clinics to learn new cheers and improve the old ones. In the spring the girls trained candidates for the next year's squad.

Songsters Provide Entertainment For School, City

Pondering several music scores, Mr. Lester Hostetler, Director of Vocal Music, plans a future choir program.

Providing the backbone for this year's Concert Choir are, left to right, Diana Meyer and Sandra Yaggy, pianists, and Dennis Crill, organist.

Now where is it? Head secretaries, Elana Stepanek and Jan Martindale, are recording points in the confidential files of the choir department.

Lying down on the job! Dave Schwalm, Hos' number one right-hand man, seems to be taking a rest while Jack Winder, his assistant, arranges the risers.

Innovating this year's vocal music program was the appearance of the Four Freshmen at the Spring Concert.. This was, as were all functions of the vocal department, a great success.

Singing at banquets, PTA teas, assemblies, and various schools highlighted the program this past year. The Concert Choir entertained at Lincoln National Life Insurance Company, and all participants received initialed pocket notebooks. Senior members of the Concert Choir sang at the Senior Banquet. In addition, during Teachers' Convention the choir had the opportunity to sing with the all-city choir. At their annual banquet, the Associated Churches were entertained by the choir at Lincolnshire Church.

Concluding this year's program was a performance by the Outgoing Choir. This marked the twentieth consecutive year that this concert has been staged at the South Wayne Baptist Church.

Pinning is the result of faithful participation in the vocal music program. Carolyn Hickman receives her pin from Lesley Malone after earning the necessary 750 points as Hos and fellow songsters watch the proceedings.

Instrumentalists Bring Culture To Student Body

The First String Quartet, consisting of left to right, Allen Steere, Carolyn DeVore, J[illegible]ce Ferber, and Cindy Miller, has been in great demand thr[illegible]out the year to play for various groups.

This year has afforded the two bands and the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Robert T. Drummond, with many busy hours.

Pep sessions, games, concerts . . . these were just a few of the activities at which band members played. The outstanding single event in which this group participated was the annual Winter Concert. Another highlight of the band's year was the bus trip which they took to Muncie Burris to view an Archer basketball victory. Once again the band sold candy turtles in order to buy music for the department.

Like the band, the orchestra also played at the assemblies and outside programs. The annual Winter Concert featured orchestra selections ranging from Richard Wagner's "Elsa's Procession to the Cathedral" to Latin American rhythms. Plymouth Congregational Church was the scene of many outside concerts. Especially impressive this past year was the candlelight service presented there on March 25. For the closing event of the year, the Chamber Orchestra participated in a concert at Berne, Indiana.

"More French horn through that passage." Mr. Robert Drummond, head of the Instrumental Music Department, conducts the orchestra in a difficult piece.

Oompah . . . members of the band increase school spirit at the pep sessions throughout the year.

Epilogue

After months of toil interspersed with many times and occasional outbursts of temper, the last g[illegible] proofs has been read and corrected, and our work is now done. The Totem office is now empty, awaiting the arrival of the new editor and her staff. But this book would not have been possible without the guidance and unceasing assistance of many people—our adviser, Mr. James Rohrabaugh; Frances Stobaugh, who did the endless checking of names; the printers, Morey, Irish, Jerry, and Don; Watters' Studio, which developed all our pictures, not to mention their taking the senior and faculty pictures; and finally, all our staff, major and minor, including the Totem agents and those whom we borrowed from the Times in moments of crisis—Bob Sl Stan Redding, and John Stein. Too, we wish to thank ev else who cooperated in the least way to help us in the tion of this annual.

Mr Davis —— I am proud to have had you as my chemistry teacher, friend, and the one most responsible for my interest in chemistry. I was proud to represent South Side in the chemistry examination. I hope I can live up to the expectations of the persons who predict a great future for me. It has been nice knowing you, and after high school I hope I will continue to have you as a friend

I hope that in college I have teachers [illegible]ents as good + nice as you. ~~Someone~~ someone you can know + like as a teacher and a friend. I hope the future affords you the very best, because it is certain that you deserve it.

I never did get to know you too, too well - but when my problems weight me down, I will feel free to come to you! (I can, can't I?)

Ill probably see you next semester.

Well, we've almost through another year. Time flies when you're having fun, but it's been a pretty long year for me. Between working and studying for exams, I've had very little time for anything else. I'm looking forward to a nice long vacation this summer. I'm going to Europe for 3 weeks and then I'll be working at Camp [illegible] for the rest of the summer. I'm really looking forward to that, too. I'll be working with the little children and I'm sure I'll enjoy it very much.

I'm glad you're coming back next year. I'm sure you'll enjoy your classes. Chemistry is a very interesting subject and I'm sure you'll do well in it. I'm also looking forward to taking physics with you. I've had a lot of fun in your classes and I'm sure I'll enjoy them even more next year.

Thanks for everything and have a nice summer.

Best wishes,

Mr. Davis —

To a real swell teacher who is a fairly good basketball player. I would like you to know that I had said many things in class I would have been excluded for elsewhere. It really has been a great deal of fun being in your class and hearing your views on a variety of subjects, especially stealing. Although Weinraub would say "It takes one to know one," I definitely believe that you are more right than he is.

Tom Halley

P.S. Glad to represent South in the chemistry test and make you a little more confident of its standing in this part of the state. Thank you for your recommendation to M.I.T. We'll all miss you.
